1. Provide a summary description of hazard recognition training documents you provide your employees related to overhead transmission and distribution facilities.

Grayson Collin Electric Cooperative has hazard recognition training conducted every year. This training is a continuous part of our weekly meetings conducted for employees by in house safety personnel. Texas Electric Cooperatives (TEC) also assists in training with monthly meetings conducted here at Grayson Collin Electric Cooperative. The training uses various resources such as, but not limited to, the APPA Safety Manual, Power Points, video presentation and photographs. At the beginning of each meeting accidents and near-misses are discussed. Discussion includes how this could have been prevented, reference to the applicable portion of the APPA/OSHA manuals, and others' experiences in a similar situation. These topics discussed at each meeting are prepared by the safety coordinator and include various topics related to hazard recognition and other general safety practices and policies. In each meeting the pertinent information located in the APPA and OSHA manuals are read, displayed and discussed thoroughly.

2. Provide a summary description of training programs you provide your employees related to the National Electrical Safety Code for construction of electric transmission and distribution lines.

At least once a year, in house safety personnel conducts a safety meeting over hazard recognition and how it applies to the National Electric Safety Code (NESC). This training includes clearance requirements for lands, roadways, and waterways. A portion of the employee training provided includes a course on hazard recognition and an explanation of clearance guideline requirements. It also helps to prepare employees to proactively recognize and report hazards and clearance related issues to their utilities' system. In addition to these meetings, Texas Electric Cooperatives (TEC) also conducts monthly safety meetings with Grayson Collin Electric Cooperative employees. A notable part of this includes specific training from the APPA safety manual over hazard recognition and how it relates to NESC clearances for distribution lines. Furthermore, this topic is discussed whenever deemed necessary or applicable to changing policies in our weekly safety meetings conducted throughout the year.
